The members of St. Mary's church who are interested in the success of the approaching fair, held a large and enthusiastic meeting in Levee hall, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. E. W. Pierce was called to the chair and W. J. Taylor was chosen secretary. The chairman of the several committees made gratifying reports and everything indicated a great fair. The Genesee opera house will be decorated in a manner that will place all other attempts in the shade. The amusement committee is working hard and will furnish excellent entertainments. The contests are progressing finely and each booth will be a vision of loveliness. Rev. Father McGrath pleased the audience in a stirring address, during which he was highly complimentary to the merchants and citizens of Auburn. He declared their generosity unbounded and prophesied a success in June. Enthusiastic speeches were made by many of the members and the meeting adjourned until next Sunday at the same hour.—Advertiser.

SHE DIED A NATURAL DEATH.

Mamie Curran Was Buried in Unconsecrated Ground at the County's Expense.

A coroner's investigation into the cause of Mamie Curran's death on Friday dispelled the rumors that she came to an untimely end by blows at her husband's hands, by drugs to effect an abortion, or by poison. The testimony of physicians who held an autopsy upon her remains, showed that all the organs in a healthy life were found in her body; no abrasions upon her skin even so fetid nor poison in the stomach. She suffered from obstruction in the fallopian tubes which weakened her nervous system and rendered her liable to heart failure from which she died.

The jury rendering a verdict in accordance with the above facts, Mobbs was of course at once released from custody. Mobbs came from England about one year ago, and became acquainted with the unfortunate girl with whom he lived intimately though unpaired. He was employed as hostler in Arnold's livery stable on Water street, and denied assaulting the girl.

Thus ends the life of Mamie Curran, 22 years of age and who began to lead the life of a downward career seven years ago. She was short in stature, slender in physique and fair looking. Of late she had frequented the streets at midnight hours of the night. Funeral services were held on Saturday from the rooms where she died. Before her death she refused to receive Father McGrath who came to administer the last consolations, and was therefore buried in the unconsecrated ground in St. Joseph cemetery at the county's expense, her relations and Mobbs being too poor to bear necessary expenses.

EDITH SHEPHERD AGAIN.

She Adheres to Her Statement that Sheriff Williams Betrayed Her.

When brought before Recorder Guion one day last week, Edith Shepherd reaffirmed, under oath, her former statement as to the person who betrayed her. She alleged that Williams first assaulted her in the hallway leading to the Good Templar lodge room, in Genesee Street, and since she met him in other places. He told her that his wife was troubled with heart disease and when she died he would give her his property. When Edith told him of her condition, Williams advised her to buy an ounce of iodoquin and take it on retiring. She purchased but dared not to take it as the bottle was labeled "poison." This condition of things is argued by some people as an incentive to Williams to commit suicide and that his death was not accidental.

There is little or no doubt but that Edith contemplated suicide. Before leaving home to seek death in the waters of the Wooden mill raceway, where she was found by two young ladies who persuaded her to return home, she penned and left the following letter:

To Mamma, Edith's Last Words to Mother:

DEAR MAMMA! If you wish to find my body, search the dam near Corning's shop. Don't feel bad because I have done this act, but think it is for the best that I can do. You can get my insurance. Make the city pay my funeral expenses, and don't go in black or mourning for me. I have done it all myself, but God knows I have repented for my sins and believe he has forgiven me. If any persons ask why I done this act tell them I would not have the disgrace of leaving my body and bear the trouble alone. If he was living I could bear it better. Don't let Walker know anything about the trouble. Don't let him know I am dead until he writes or comes and then say but little to him. Good-bye, mamma, may God bless you and keep you from mourning over a worthless girl like me. EDITH MAY.

The letter was found after Edith had been brought back to the house. The letter referred to is a young man who paid some attentions to the girl, but who left the city nearly a year ago.

THEODORE P. CASE'S WILL.

Bequeaths His Property Mostly to His Two Sons.

On Saturday last, the will of the late Theodore P. Case was admitted to probate. In substance it is as follows: I hereby give and devise to my wife, Francis F. Case, the use and entire control, during her life, of the house and premises where I now reside, known as No. 196 Genesee street, and after her death the same shall belong, in equal shares to my sons, William E. Case and Howard E. Case, giving and devising said house and premises to said sons, their heirs and assigns, forever. In addition to what I have otherwise given to my wife, I hereby give and bequeath unto her the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, (that is to say $100,000), which I direct to be paid to her, as soon after my death as the circumstances of my estate shall render the same convenient. This provision for my wife is to be received by her in lieu of dower.

Having given to my son, Willard E. Case, a certain property before the making of this will, I give and bequeath to my son Howard E. Case, fifty thousand dollars, (that is to say $50,000). I direct that the legacy hereinbefore given to my wife, shall be paid in priority to any other legacy given by my will. I give, devise and bequeath all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate both real and personal, wherever I shall die seized or possessed, to my sons Willard E. Case and Howard E. Case, to be divided between them equally, share and share alike, forever; but in case of either of my said sons dying during my lifetime, leaving lawful issue, then I hereby give, devise and bequeath the portion of my estate, hereby given to said son, to his said issue.

It is my will and so I direct, that my executors or administrators herein named shall not be liable for any error of judgment in the execution of their duties under this will.

I hereby nominate and appoint my wife, Francis F. Case, executrix, and my sons, Willard E. Case and Howard E. Case, executors of this last will and testament, and no bonds shall be required to be given by either of them.

I declare that such advancements as I may have made or hereafter make, to either of my said sons, shall be in addition to, and not in satisfaction of, any legacies, portions or the other benefits given by my will.

The instrument was executed in the handwriting of the deceased, Oct. 6, 1888, in the presence of S. L. Bradley, G. B. Longstreet and James Alexander, Jr. A large number of gifts had been made during the lifetime of Mr. Case to his sons, and it is thought but a small portion of the property will be subject to the inheritance tax law, recently enacted by the legislature. It is impossible to determine, at present the entire amount of the estate.

Daughters of Pocahontas Organize.

A new organization christened Waneta Council No. 16, Daughters of Pocahontas, has been born in Auburn and now bears on its roll of membership 35 names. As fathers, husbands and sons have organized a lodge of Independent Order of Red Men, mothers, wives and daughters, not to be outdone, organized a council composed mostly of squaws to entertain themselves and such bucks as may get into their company. The order is designed for social and pecuniary aid of its members. Its officers are: Prophetsess, Mrs. Mina Bugbee, Pocahontas; Mrs. Annie M. Bell; Wenona, Mrs. L. S. Eldredge; Ponattan, John W. Fowler; Keeper of Records, Mrs. Minnie Parker; Assistant keeper of records, Mrs. Delia J. Elson; Keeper of Wampum, Mrs. Annie W. Stalker; First Scout, Mrs. Susie Warner; Second Scout, Mrs. Maggie Ward; First Runner, Mrs. Pearl Bugbee; Second Runner, Miss Lena Cushman; Gaiup of the Forest, George W. Wilson; Guard of Wigwam, E. R. Worden.

Towns Is Sick and in Trouble.

Charles H. Towns, superintendent of the Property Division, is confined to his bed by nervous prostration. On Saturday his conduct was so eccentric that rumors of his intoxication became prevalent on the street. A reporter called upon him at the close of the evening's meeting to investigate his condition, and being asked by Towns if he looked like an intoxicated person the reporter replied in the affirmative. Towns ordered the reporter to leave and assisted him to the door with some force.

A warrant for Towns' arrest was issued on Monday on complaint of A. S. Martin, who charges Towns with abusing him, using profanity, calling him a thief and alleging that his business was that of a fence for thieves. The dispute with Mr. Martin was over a key which Towns demanded. The mission became very angry and threatened to whip Mr. Martin, shaking his fist under his nose.

On Wednesday, Towns recovered sufficiently to be arrested. Officer Graney escorted him to the city hall where he was locked up until afternoon, when he was arraigned and pleaded not guilty to charges of violating sections 4 and 7 of the city ordinances. He was released on $300 bail. Mrs. Nancy Pickard and C. B. Nichols, sureties until this forenoon when he will be tried by jury.

If You Come to the Fair Put an Extra Dollar in Your Pocket.

The June fair to occur next week, with its many attractions, ought and probably will draw thousands of farmers to Auburn on one or more days during the exhibition. Among the number will be more or less of the patrons of the ARGUS, who are gently reminded of the idea of putting an extra dollar in their pockets, to call upon the editor and to secure his autograph to a receipt for a year's subscription. He will be "at home" on every day and evening during the week.

Will Celebrate This Evening.

The merchants of lower Genesee Street whose places of business have been more or less annoyed for many months by the building of Genesee Street bridge, do not intend to let the completion of the bridge, pass by, without a celebration. A subscription paper in circulation met with signers sufficient to warrant a grand display of pyrotechnics, oratory etc., to take place this evening.

Surrogate's Court.

Hon. Geo. B. Turner, Surrogate, William M. Collier, Clerk.

Saturday—The will of the late Sherman J. Williams was admitted to probate, yesterday. Julia A. Williams the widow is named as sole legatee and executrix. The instrument was executed February 17, 1888, in the presence of Charles A. Trowbridge and George Benson Lewis.

Carl Rose Deserted His Wife.

Less than twelve months ago, Miss Daisy, daughter of M. O. Lewis of Havens avenue married a man named Carl Rose in opposition to emphatic protests of her mother. So determined was Daisy to have Rose as her husband that while the ceremony of marriage was in process the assistance of the police was invoked to patrol the premises in front of Mrs. Rose's residence, where the couple were united.

Since the wedding, Rose has worked industriously at the wooden mill in Washington street up to Saturday night, daughter and mother meantime becoming reconciled. On Monday Rose deserted his wife and took $50 from a chest, money his wife had saved out of his earnings.

On Tuesday Mrs. Rose received a note from the missing husband, mailed on a train at Syracuse, in which he declared he had left her for good, giving as an excuse that he could no longer put up with her mother's treatment. A note was found in his foot chest at the mill, addressed to his wife and simply said that she would never see him again. The deserted wife is about to become a mother.

The Board of Health.

A regular meeting of the Board of Health took place on Monday evening. Health officer Furness reported three cases of scarlet fever, one in South Fulton street, one in Seymour street and one in Wilkey street; also two cases of diphtheria, one in North Fulton street and one in York street, the latter terminating fatally. Inspector Sisson reported eighteen complaints, among which was one from the proprietor of the Osborne House were keeping forty hogs within city limits contrary to the ordinances of the Board. Meat and milk inspector Dyer reported all milk examined by him during the past month to have analyzed one per cent. higher in fat than the law required. The markets were all O. K.

Funeral of Mrs. Martha Bouck.

The Cobleskill Times says: Mrs. Martha Bouck, widow of Abram Bouck, deceased, died at her home in Auburn, N. Y., Monday last, of heart disease, at the advanced age of 84 years. Although her health had been poor all winter, she was confined to her bed but one day, the end coming very suddenly. Mrs. Bouck was a former resident of the town of Cobleskill, moving from here some 25 years ago. Her husband was a cousin of Governor Bouck of this state, and a soldier in the war of 1812, and Mrs. Bouck was one of the few pensioners left of that war. She leaves an only daughter, Mrs. Martin Underhill of Auburn, N. Y., a sister, Mrs. Mary Crippen, of Altamont, N. Y., and one brother, Nicholas Hempstead, of Cato.

The funeral services were held at Cobleskill, Tuesday evening, the funeral being held Wednesday forenoon
