TO REFORM THINGS,

That Seems to be the Purpose of the New People's Club.

FOR A NON-POLITICAL CITY.

The Municipal Elections Should Not Be Decided Because of a Candidate's Inclination to a High or a Low Tariff, the Shame Trains Should Be Trimmed, the Newspapers Should Be Reformed and There Should Be a Saturday Half Holiday. The Club Will Celebrate on Its Own Hook on July 5.

The People's club has been organized. The People's club contemplates many sweeping reforms. It proposes to crystallize public opinion and apply it with a generous hand to the sore places in municipal affairs. It proposes a whole lot. The plan and scope of the club is somewhat indefinite as yet; but among the side issues that were given concrete form at the meeting last night are these: To take politics out of municipal government, to abolish the shade trees, to trim the shame trains, to reform the methods of the Auburn newspaper, to inaugurate such reforms that the cities of the State shall look, admire and emulate. The general opinion is that the contract is a big one.

Last night's meeting was held in the new quarters of the Auburn Business Men's association. It was due at 7:30 o'clock but it was not called to order until after 8 o'clock. There was a much business done. The expression of views was the chief purpose of the meeting and everything was decided through so that that order might be reached as soon as possible. F. E. Swift offered a resolution to the effect that the "next nearest measure" of the club should be to provide a little entertainment for its members. The resolution proposed that on July 5 every member of the club be given a ticket to the foot of the lake, and that, if he be the head of a family, he be given four tickets. It proposed further that a band be engaged for the day; that the day be called "The Opening Day of the People's Club," and that a committee of 15 be named by the club to act with him as a committee of arrangements. The resolution was adopted.

A resolution was then adopted authorizing the chair to select nine members of the club to act with him in the preparation of a constitution and by laws. George B. Longstreet was elected temporary treasurer of the club. The membership blanks that have been in circulation since the club was formed were then handed in. A subsequent count showed that the club already had a membership of 500. There were about 40 present when Chairman Erickhoff announced the purpose of the meeting. They were all eminently respectable. Some of them were prosperous and influential; some of them were humble. Mr. Erickhoff said that the purpose of the meeting was to have a discussion of the uses of the club and the possibilities at hand. He made the invitation to speak very general. He remarked that all men, from attorneys to laborers, were quite at liberty to express themselves. He announced that careful preparations had been made to have the discussion perpetuated by a stenographer, and requested the speakers to be brief; they might be, to step to the front so that they could be more easily "taken." Thomas M. Osborne was called upon as a representative man to set the ball a rolling. But Mr. Osborne had not been present at the first meeting and declined for the time being. Mr. Erickhoff pronounced the apology a good one and after a few minutes called upon Rev. William H. Hubbard. Mr. Hubbard was not loath to speak. He said that he was entirely willing to cooperate with citizens of every degree for the welfare of the city. The outline of the club was a wise one. It opened the way to many possibilities. For himself, he thought that one work the club might profitably take in hand was the "beautifying of the city, the removal of offensively painted telegraph poles, the trimming of shade trees, etc. etc. It was well indeed to develop the public spirit of the people of the city. The club would give them a platform to stand on that was broader than class or church distinctions. It would cultivate a spirit that would bind them together. There didn't seem to be any one else who had had an idea to express. At length the chair fell back again on Mr. Osborne. Mr. Osborne complied with his request this time and made an address that the members of the club expressed admiration of afterward. He said he did not approve of the rose colored-view of life in the city of Auburn. The most conspicuous failure in American life was the government of the cities; and Auburn was no exception to the rule. In the history of this nation there is either corruption or a low standard of municipal government. The people of Auburn criticized much; but they didn't go far enough or reach down deep enough. The government of the city was not up to the level of the intellect or the good judgment of its inhabitants. The speaker said that a club like the People's club would take the place of the old and far famed New England Town meeting. It would be a meeting place for the exchange of ideas; it would clarify the minds of the people on public questions. He called attention to the fact that people differed on the question of what was for the "good" of the city. It was a function of the club to learn upon what people agreed. As far as he was concerned, he could work toward a common end with a man with whom he did not agree on all questions. He was a good Democrat; yet, he might say, he had always worked for the welfare of D. M. Osborne & Co. with good Republicans. Then he passed on to a consideration of the generally accepted ideas of the qualifications of a city official for office. He thought that it was absurd that the tariff had any influence on municipal elections. What the city needed was to get away from partisanship in city government. The fact that men were not elected to office because they were men qualified to discharge their duties, was the root of all evil in the government of the city. He did not want to cast any reflection on the men who were in the City hall at the present time; but he was compelled to say that the intellectual status of the Common Council had been considerably below the average for the past 20 years. He gave it as his opinion that the change in the Board of Education from a partisan to a non-partisan Board had been productive of much good. He believed that as long as men were elected from districts there would be log rolling and incompetent officials. He would like to see the aldermen elected by the people at large. He acknowledged that that would be difficult of accomplishment; but he hoped that the club would resist that honesty, good judgment, and business capacity should be, in their estimation, the qualifications for municipal offices. Frank W. Richardson, being called upon, said that he was glad to know that there was a place where all classes were brought together for a common end. The interests of the citizens were not conflicting. There was no reason why Auburn should not set the pace for the other cities in the Union. The municipal life of the cities was not commensurate with National life in dignity. The chairman made a brief address in which he stated that the idea of the club had been in his head for a year or more. He had heard 200 men endorse the club since its organization. A little energy was all that was needed. He for one was willing to work for the success of the club. L. L. Keen said that it would be a happy day for Auburn when politics was abolished from municipal elections. He referred to partisan appointments and proceeded to a criticism of the police department. He said that he had seen the side door of a saloon open on a certain Sabbath evening, and men passing in and out. At the door were two men in a beastly state of intoxication. A policeman patrolled the street up and down before the door. He passed the intoxicated men without noticing them. Finally, he went to the corner and told a group of boys who were sitting quietly on a railing to "move on." The police were not there to enforce the law. They knew it and everybody else knew it. They were there to get all the money they could out of the job. If the laws were enforced the city would go ahead. The chairman here proposed a Saturday half holiday and was endorsed in a few remarks by Rev. W. H. Hubbard. Mr. Hubbard thought the members of the club should sign a pledge to buy nothing after noon on Saturday. P. E. Swift, Dr. A. H. Brown, the chairman and Mr. Richardson made brief speeches in approval of what had already been said. During them it was evident that Mr. Osborne was apprehensive of having been misunderstood. He said that he had no intention of proposing that the club should "usurp" the functions of the city officials. Such a proceeding was very far from his thought, and it would be very unfortunate if a wrong idea should get abroad. Of course the newspapers (with a glance at the reporters) largely formed public opinion. He respected the newspapers of the city just as anybody ought to. But he thought that even the methods might be reformed. The club favored everything that was Republican, and the other opposed all that its rival was first to favor. He did not want it to appear that he or the club was seeking to interfere nobody. It was 10 o'clock then, and adjournment came.

That Tired Feeling

An exceedingly common and dangerously significant condition. A warning which must be heeded, or, as with the express train which fails to regard the danger signal, disaster must follow.

A sure indication of this, weak, impoverished blood. A certain admonition that the blood is not properly feeding the nerves, tissues and organs of the body. An imperative demand for the tonic, vitalizing effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla upon the blood. Weak, nervous, tired men and women are found everywhere. Men strive too hard to "keep their ends up," women too anxiously work "on their nerves" to meet the demands of home and society, all have too little sleep, and the excessive drain on strength and nervous energy will soon completely ruin health.

The strength must be built up by pure blood, and the nerves must also find in pure blood the proper nerve food. For this purpose nothing equals Hood's Sarsaparilla. The thousands of wonderful cures it has accomplished, the like of which no other medicine and no combination of medicines can show, prove its curative merit; prove that it has never been equaled as a blood medicine; prove that Hood's Sarsaparilla is indeed the ideal spring medicine, the best nerve and stomach tonic, the one true blood purifier.

"I was feeling tired all the time, as tired in the morning as I was at night. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has helped me so that I have no such feelings now. My little girl suffered with pain in her stomach, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured her." JAMES T. MANN, Hubbardston, Mass. Weakness and Loss of Appetite. "Last spring my little girl had no appetite and was weak. I gave her one-half bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which cured her. We will now take no other medicine but Hood's Sarsaparilla, and recommend it to everyone for weakness and loss of appetite." WM. F. HANZ, Brysonia, Pa. All Tired Out. "My husband was all tired out and run down in health. He felt the need of something to build him up, and he began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills and the result was very satisfactory. We regard Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills as excellent medicines." Mrs. H. L. MOWAT, Towanda, Pa. Tired and Worn Out Feeling. "I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and cannot say too much in its favor. It has done me more good than any medicine I have ever tried. I have advised my friends to use it for a tired and worn out feeling, as I know that it gives relief." WILLIAM T. HOBBS, Hollyville, Del.
