OLD-TIME RAILROADING.

Some of it Recalled by an Auburn Road Engineer of Forty-Five Years Age.

The Buffalo News relates that there are about 400 men in the East Buffalo shop, and Master Mechanic Gould knows every one of them like a book. He never has any trouble with his men and they are almost like a happy family out there. Mr. Gould himself is an old engineer and knows all about an engine. Forty-five years ago he ran an engine between Rochester and Auburn and Foreman Perry was his fireman. They are both grown gray headed now in the service of the same company and their step is hot as elasticcas then. If they were compelled to send a train out over the road with the style of engine and fuel used in the old days, they would smile.

"Railroading has wonderfully changed since then," said Mr. Perry in a further conversation which the News representative had with him. "The first engine I ever ran was on the Auburn division. She was about as big as one of our tenders now. She had only one pair of drivers and she could eat more wood in pulling three coaches than a lumber camp could supply."

"Railroad business was not down so fine then?"

"Oh, no. There were none of your fancy engines and big moguls then to get you out when you got snowed in. When we got stuck in a snow drift at Powers Station we had to dig out and seek shelter in a farm house for a few days until there was a thaw."

"Where were the gangs of men who ought to come along and do the shoveling?"

"Every crew did its own shoveling in those days, and it was either wade or stick in the drift. I have seen snow up to the top of our smokestack. When we ran against a drift going around those curves, and drifts, too, that would be an obstacle to one of our large 38-ton engines. There was no injector then, no fireinjector, and you had to get out and hold your hand on the petcock to throw it out to see if the valves were working. If the engineer looked solemn, open flew the door, and the wood was pulled on by his fireman. In the summer it would be so hot that the lagging would be almost charred and smoked away in her jacket, and get so worn that there was very little sperming done there. Yes things are changed. To see one of our flyers go out now at the rate of a mile a minute, and think of that little Hinkley we ran, all bespangled and covered over with brass until she looked like a Hertel avenue belle, is quite a stretch of the imagination.

Fined for Spearing Fish.

The Cayuga Fish and Game Association scored a victory, Tuesday, in its suit against Christopher Peterson for spearing fish in Owasco Lake. The case was before Justice B. C. Leonard, of Sennett, and Lyman E. Warren was the prosecuting attorney. John W. O'Brien appeared for the defence. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, a few minutes after the case was submitted, and Peterson was fined $25 and costs. The Association took a firm stand in this case and proposes to stand as firmly in all others, pushing to the last extremity every case of violation of the fish and game laws.

Sunstroke at Ira.

"If I don feel any better after I get this on, I shall quit work."

So spoke Ben Barnard, Friday, sticking his pitchfork into a pile of hay which he was transfering to a wagon in James Slocum's field a mile west of Ira. Even as he spoke, he fell to the ground insensible and before 8 P. M. he was dead. It was case of sunstroke. Barnard was a farm laborer and leaves a family.

The Crackers Still at Work.

A fine large farmhouse, belonging to Mr. Scofield and situated about a mile and half south of Meridian, was burned early Monday evening. The cause of the blaze was one of those mischievous fire-crackers.

THE SOULE ESTATE.

COUNSEL ARGUING ON THE STANDING OF THE CONTESTANTS.

The Case Again Postponed and Until Cooler Weather.

At 10 o'clock this morning the lawyers and heirs interested in the contest of the will of the late Lyman Soule appeared before Surrogate Teller. The case was opened by the filing of a notice of appearance by H. V. Howland for Charles G. Brigge, Charles F. Durston, Howard Soule, and others solely as legatees for the sole purpose of making a motion to dismiss the petition of Mrs. Cynthia D. Rood, praying for the revocation of the probate of the will. The paper also sets forth that the executors have not been served with citations to appear in the case and have not been named as parties in the case, and hence no order can be made affecting the will, since the executors have not been made parties to the proceedings. Second, because Cynthia D. Rood appeared by counsel, George D. Cowles and waived her statutory right to these proceedings, by allowing the probate of the will and an agreement filed with the court.

Judge Hughitt noted his appearance for the three charity corporations interested in the will.

Lawyer Waters, of Syracuse appeared for the petitioner and George S. Everts.

H. V. Howland then commenced his argument to sustain his plea for the dismissal of the proceedings. He referred to the decree which the proceeding seeks to revoke and quoted the code which provides that any party interested can, within a year after the probate of a will, file a petition to revoke the decree and specifies the grounds on which the party may proceed, which are the validity or competency of the proof in the matter. And the petition must pray that citation be served on the executors and others interested and the executors on receipt thereof must suspend all proceedings in the execution of their trust. The proceeding is strictly statutory and must be followed. The petition sets forth that the will was duly probated June 26, 1886 and the executors appointed but there is no proof of service of citation.

The executors do not appear here in their official capacity, having only been cited as legatees. This is invalid and irregular. Mr. Howland argued and quoted several decisions to support his theory that according to the revised code, which gives sixty days after the filing of the petition for the service of the citations, by the statute the time in which the petitioner can issue the citations has now expired and hence the proceedings cannot go on. He held that the proceeding to be begun required the service of the citations. The sixty days limit under the new code prevents any getting around this, that he knew of. The executors have not been served with citations in their respective capacity and cannot now be so served, therefore, there is no way of continuing this case. The executors stand here as ignorant of any proceedings as if they were in another world.

On the other hand, this proceeding is irregular and cannot continue because the petitioner and George S. Everts were both parties to the settlement and consented to this decree for a valuable consideration and there is nothing in English or American authorities that had been able to find which will give a precedent for the retraction. The courts have always held parties responsible for such consents and have decided that in case of fraud practiced on parties by an attorney, the satisfaction must come from the guilty attorney and the agreement is not affected thereby. He cited several decisions to prove that the consent of the party, once given, is binding. The agreement made by these parties was that the will should not be contested, in consideration of a sum to be paid from the interest on a portion of the estate for five years, divided equally among 18 of the heirs, among whom were the petitioner and George S. Everts. This, Mr. Howland claimed, should prevent the contest.

Mr. Hughitt, in behalf of the charity corporations, united in the application for dismissal and presented all the grounds set forth by Mr. Howland.

Mr. Waters, for the petitioner, expressed surprise at the course of his opponent and was sorry to think the adjournment was made to extend over the year so that this technicality could be brought up, but he denied that the arguments set forth by Mr. Howland were sufficient and asked for further time to look up and submit his answer. Knapp and Hughitt supported Mr. Howland's views and it was finally decided that the case should be adjourned till September 2, the arguments in the matter to be submitted in the meantime and the judge on that date would formally announce his decision.

A Square Statement by a Carpenter.

"For years I have had a chest trouble amounting to nothing short of consumption. I saw how others in like condition had been cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and resolved to test its merits in my own case. The results are so plain as hardly to require a bitstock or any anger-ment inf avor of this grate remedy. It does awl it claims! It builds up the system, supports and strengthens where others fail." He adz: "My recovery, which is now on a foundation, hinges entirely on the compass of this wonderful Restorative, having tried other remedies without a bit of relief."

The Fourth in Prison.

Agent and Warden Lanehart made his last Fourth of July in prison memorable by providing an excellent chapel entertainment and giving the convicts a banquet of ham, cheese, real coffee with milk and sugar, and other luxuries. The prisoners also received many boxes of cake, fruit and delicacies from outside friends. In the chapel exercises, Miss Ottilie Rinze took part as vocalist and pianist, Mrs. Minnie Austin recited several selections, the prison choir sang and Chaplain Searls made an address.

Death of Cyrenus Wheeler.

At the ripe age of 95 years, which a month and a few days would have made into 96, Cyrenus Wheeler, father of Hon. Cyrenus Wheeler, Jr., of this city, died Monday. Mr. Wheeler had been a resident of Poplar Ridge, where he died, for over fifty years, removing there from Fall River, Mass., where he had been engaged in building cotton machinery and making cotton cloth. He was highly esteemed by all his neighbors and friends.

COL. HORACE B. FITCH.

A Faithful Citizen and Honored Veteran Passes Suddenly Away.

Returning from a pleasure excursion to the lake Monday eve., the children of Col. Horace B. Fitch were met by the crushing news of their father's death, which had occurred at the home in Ross Place at about 6 P. M. The same sad tidings reached the friends of the dead man, out in the city, and brought to many a heart a pang of sorrow.

Col. Fitch died of a heart trouble and his passing away was sudden despite the fact that the disease had long been threatening his life. He was a son of the late Abijah Fitch and had put into his forty-seven years much manly and successful endeavor. He was a Williams college student in early manhood, but left the junior class in 1861 to enter the army, where he held a lieutenancy in a company raised by himself and brother. Later on he won promotion and was a lieutenant colonel when the war closed. Since the war, he has been in active business life, all his time but four years, which he spent in Germany, having been passed in this city. He has won and deserved the highest confidence of his fellow citizens, as two elections to the Board of Supervisors have demonstrated. Col. Fitch was a steadfast veteran and was commander of the lately organized detachment of the Union Veteran Union. He leaves, besides his comrades and his countless other friends, a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Fitch being a daughter of the late William Hills.

A Clairvoyant's Death.

E. J. Crosman, the magnetic healer, fell and died at his home over 7 North street, at about 1 P. M. Saturday.

Mr. Crosman formerly lived in Mechanic street and his rooms there were the scene of more than one remarkable assemblage of those who believe in supernatural manifestations of spiritualism or clairvoyancy. He had not a few firm followers and believers and had certainly accomplished some things extraordinary in the way of divining and healing. About the first of May he removed with his wife to the North street apartments over Zepp's news rooms, where he died. He was sick all last night and Drs. Heartwell and Creveling were called to see him this morning. The latter found him in bed in a small close room and the condition of a man bordering on violent delirium. He got the patient out into a larger room and left him supposing that he would be kept in bed. Mr. Crosman got up, however, and went downstairs, finding that he felt better. Returning, he went to the sink in the kitchen and was standing there when he began to waver and finally fell and died. Dr. Creveling was then again called and he pronounced the cause of death to be heart failure, resulting from acute alcoholism. Mr. Crosman was a large, finely built and good-looking man, with dark hair and heavy black mustach streaked with gray. He was between forty and fifty years in age, and was at one time employed as a moulder in this city. His magnetic power he discovered by accident and never attempted to explain or theorize concerning it; but when in a trance he claimed to be under the influence of an Indian chieftain. He came to Auburn from Buffalo, but is said to have been born in New England.

Death of Rev. Dr. McLaren.

Rev. Malcolm N. McLaren, D. D., died at his home, 30 Genesee street, in this city, Saturday evening. He was born in Albany, in 1798, and was a graduate of Union College and Princeton Theological Seminary. He had held pastorates in New York, Rochester, and other parts of this State and was everywhere known as a faithful teacher, preacher and leader. When he retired from active duty, in 1872, the Presbyterian clergy lost one of its strongest members and in his death the church has lost a true disciple. Dr. McLaren was married in 1827 to Miss Susan Patty, of this city, and besides his widow he leaves three children,—M. N. McLaren of Milwaukee, Mrs. John B. Wolff of Washington and Mrs. Robert A. Nelson of this city. The funeral was appointed for 4 P. M. Tuesday.

A Launching at Cascade.

The handsome new Owasco Lake steamer, owned by E. D. Cooper and M. S. Wood, of Moravia, was launched with fitting ceremony and in the presence of a thousand people at Cascade, Saturday. The trim little craft is a great addition to the lake fleet. She is fifty seven feet long, by ten feet eight inches, and is second in carrying capacity only to the Lady of the Lake. C. W. Conklin, of this city, put in her boiler and the engine is from Sanderson, of Syracuse. The model was by Reynolds, of Canajoharie, and the master builder was D. McNutt, of Sodus Bay.

Fair Ground Plans.

At the meeting of the Agricultural Society, Saturday, at the Court House a committee consisting of H. D. Woodruff, Gorton W. Allen, A. D Baker, Elisha Cook, Stephen Patterson and E. D. Mosher was appointed to look up plans for fixing up the Fair Grounds, building a new exhibition hall, barns, etc.

A MORAVIA MILLINER.

The, Her Step Mother and Sheriff Mead in a Special Term Case.

Says Saturday's Syracuse Herald: The case of Henry Bronner and Libbie Bronner who compose the millinery firm of Bronner & Company in this city, against Ella L. Taylor, Emma Leigh, J. Fitch Walker and J. Warren Mead came up before Justice Kennedy in the special term to-day. The defendant, Taylor, was in the millinery business at Moravia, and in April of this year she bought $250 worth of goods from the plaintiffs, a payment of $75.25 being soon afterward made on the bill. On June 11th she went into insolvency, the defendant Walker becoming her assignee. The defendant Leigh, who is her stepmother, was preferred in the sum of $1,189, the amount of a judgment confessed by the assignor on the day of the failure. After the docketing of this judgement, the defendant Mead, who is the Sheriff of Cayuga county, made a levy under it on all the goods in the millinery store, and advertised them for sale on June 25. Then the action that came before Justice Kennedy to-day, was begun by the plaintiffs through Goodelle & Nottingham. The complaint alleged that the Leigh judgement was obtained by fraud and collusion on the part of the assignee and her stepmother, and that it was not founded upon any bona fide indebtedness.

"On June 24th, a temporary injunction restraining the defendant from enforcing the alleged fraudulent judgment and also directing Sheriff Mead not to proceed with the sale was obtained from Justice Vann with an order to show cause to-day why the injunction should not continue until final judgment in the Bronner action. The matter was argued at considerable length this morning. Justice Kennedy continued the order as to the assignee and the defendants Taylor and Leigh, but modified it so as to permit the Sheriff to go on with the sale, a direction being made, however, that the money so realized should be paid into the court and not used in the satisfaction of the alleged fraudulent judgment."

—Duke Charles Theodore of Bavaria, brother of the Empress of Austria, during a recent brief stay at Meran, made no less than 220 successful operations at the Eye Infirmary of that town.

John Pickard.

John Pickard was born January 25, 1801, in the town of Springfield, Otsego Co., N. Y., and died at Emerson, Cayuga Co., June 27, 1887, aged 86 years, 6 months, 2 days.

When about 8 years of age he went to Owasco and lived there about 24 years. When about 32 years of age he moved with his family to the neighborhood now known as Emerson, and in this vicinity he has spent the last 55 years of his life, well known and highly esteemed by the entire community. All who speak of him do so with kind words.

In 1825 he was married with Sally Petty, and for 62 years they have lived, and toiled and rejoiced together, till now she is left to fill out a brief time of widowhood, waiting till called to the happy reunion above. Their life together has been on the whole a happy one though not rich in this world's goods, yet rich in each other's love and in the affection of their children and friends. Eleven children were born unto them and another they adopted, of these, 7 have gone before their father to the spirit world, and 5 yet remain. For many years Father Pickard has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Until enfeebled by old age he was earnest and active in all church work, for about 25 years a class leader, honored and loved and happy in the service. His religious life was a joyous one. He loved to sing: the prayer and class meetings were made melodious with the frequent hymns of praise, and often resounded with the shouts of triumph.

Of late years he has felt the burdens of age, but his faith in Christ, his redeemer, has been strong. It never faltered, his hope has been bright and clear, and the comfort and witnessing of the Holy Ghost was his sure testimony till the last.

His first attack of paralysis was in Jan., 1886, but he kept round till the 2d, about 5 weeks ago, since which time he gradually failed. His death was quiet and peaceful. F.
