William J. Lewis, the head bookkeeper, who succeeded James M. Tobin in the Heffron Company, for the years 1910-11, resumed the witness chair when United States Court was convened this morning. He was railed upon to explain the system used in the office.

Among the books he was asked to explain the nature of was one Tailed the Stock Subscription Book, in which were entered the statements signed by the aubscripers to the effect that they had subscribed to so many shares of stock. A good share of the morning was spent in showing what this book

The question again arose as to how much liberty would be allowed the defense in cross-examination. The counsel for the defense agreed to keep close to the line of the evidence produced and not get into collateral matter as the cross fire of questions from the attorneys of the two defendants tended to complicate and delay matters without get-Ung anywhere:

Laird was pressed into service to officiate at a marriage ceremony between two young Polish people who decided that life without each other was not at all what it ought to be. The bride is Miss Rosa Milak, aged 23, while the groom is Michael Andrew Boduer, aged 29. both of Auburn.

The two made up their minds that they wanted to become man and wife and informed Mr. Laird of that conclusion. He sent them to the office of City Clerk Hanlon to secure the necessary license. When the couple returned it was discovered that there was no corlificate, and as no wedding would be complete without one, the groom's brother, who had accompanied them, was dispatched post haste to secure one. During his absence the pair eat and gased into each other's eyes.

As soon as the certificate was obtained the ceremony was preformed with Sergeant Edward Keegan acting as bridesmaid and Bergeant Patrick Graney as best man. Peter Hodner, brother of the groom, and John Carpanski, the Polish interpeter, signed the document as witnesses and the happy couple walked out of the court room with smiles, which threatened to dislodge their ears. spreading over their features, while the bride hugged the certificate tightly under her arm,
