REV. H. W. SMITH HONORED.

The following clipping from the Union Springs Advertiser under date of Friday, May 23, gives a pleasing idea of the esteem in which Rev. Horace W. Smith is held by the people of his former pastorate: On Tuesday the members of Warren Lodge, No. 147, F. & A. M. of this village, held one of the most enthusiastic meetings that has been held by this lodge for many years. The occasion was the visit to the local lodge of the Most Worshipful Grand Lecturer of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York Rev. Horace W. Smith. A former pastor of the Methodist church in the village, Mr. Smith has a large circle of friends in the vicinity and all who could arrange to be present were out to greet him. The first section of the lodge work was done in the afternoon, following it a complimentary banquet to Mr. Smith was given at the United States hotel. Fifty-six guests sat down to one of the tastiest banquets that it is possible to imagine and all did ample justice to the fine food provided by the hotel management. The menu was well selected and nicely served, the pretty dining room of the hotel being filled to nearly its full capacity by the party, which included not only the lodge members, but many invited guests, both ladies and gentlemen. Mr. Smith made a few remarks to the visitors at the close of the banquet in his usual happy vein and the applause accorded him showed the appreciation of his audience. The quartette very obligingly sang one selection before the Masons returned to the lodge rooms, leaving their guests to enjoy a social hour at the big hotel before leaving for their homes. The lodge work was resumed after the banquet and the regular degree team was assisted by the excellent quartette of Auburn lodge, composed of Messrs. Warner, Jones, Richardson and Jameson with Fred Swan at the organ. The regalia recently purchased by the lodge was used for the first time and made a very favorable impression. The address made by Mr. Smith made a deep and lasting impression, not only on the class of candidates but upon every member present, who deemed it a rare privilege to have been at the lodge on this occasion. Visitors were present from Aurora, Auburn, Cayuga, Scipio, Genoa, Syracuse and other lodges and a social hour followed the completion of the work. Light refreshments were served, the good things being prepared by the ladies of the Eastern Star Chapter. The evening will be one long remembered by the Masons of this village, as it is seldom that a small lodge is honored by a visit from a Grand Officer.

A SANE SUGGESTION

In an address on the floor of the Senate on May 20 Senator Newlands urged an official investigation to determine "whether the prices of any farm products in the United States are raised above the international level by the duties now imposed on such products." Here is a ray of sanity in a fog of misconception and misstatement.

To the late tariff board was assigned the hopelessly impossible task of ascertaining the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, the ascertained difference to be used as the basis for tariff rates. Senator Newlands's proposal is an investigation of the influence of the tariff on commodity prices. To what extent does the tariff on meats, sugar, fruits, vegetables, wines, dairy products, affect the price of those commodities? To what extent does the tariff on wool affect the price of clothing? Mr. Newlands asserts that "It has been proved by the statistics that the Republican party has sought through the protective system not simply to secure a revenue upon imports but also to impose upon the consumers throughout the entire country added prices for the domestic manufactures." We do not admit that anything of the kind has been proved or that the alleged result of added prices in the sense implied has been the aim of the party. We are however, in entire agreement with the Senator when he says that "we have never had any showing as to whether or not these duties imposed upon farm products had the effect of raising, inside of the tariff walls, the prices of domestic prices of farm products to the extent of the duty."

It is to be kept in mind that both food and clothing, the direct and indirect source of both being the farm, represent an average of approximately 60 per cent. of the yearly expenditures of consumers. To what extent are the prices of these commodities affected by the tariff? That being the rate of the Dingley and Payne bills, has the price of butter increased 6 cents a pound by the tariff? Has the price of flour been increased 25 per cent., the price of vegetables 25 per cent., the price of fruits 25 cents a bushel, of poultry 3 cents a pound, of potatoes 25 cents a bushel, of eggs 5 cents a dozen? Has the price of bacon and hams been raised above the international price level to the extent of the 4 cents a pound imposed by the Payne bill? Did those commodities decline one cent a pound when the Payne bill cut the Dingley rate from 5 cents to 4 cents? How did the 2 cent rate of the Dingley bill and the 1 1-2 cents on fresh beef, mutton, and pork explain the high price of meat? We agree with Senator Newlands that the public so far as trustworthy official information is concerned, is decidedly in the dark.

The political and popular attack on the tariff has been made along the line of manufactured wares. There is available, through the Bureau of Labor, whose business it has been for many years to record and report, officially, the movement of prices, the reliable information that while the average price of manufactured wares has increased less than 40 per cent, in the last fifteen years or so, the price of farm products has increased more than 100 per cent. If the tariff is, as alleged, the notable responsible cause of the high price of hats and shoes and clothes, of steel rails, plate glass, crockery, cotton cloth and woollen clothing, why is it not equally the cause of the high price of pork and potatoes?

Neither in clubs, street cars nor sewing circles have we heard any intimate discussion of the exorbitant cost of zinc or gelatin or malleable iron castings. The great consuming public does not concern itself actively with the tariff rate on wool tops, roofing felt, cork bark and curled hair, but would probably welcome a little definite and authoritative information regarding the precise influence of the tariff on milk, onions, cabbages, cranberries and grapefruit.

Senator Newlands's proposal to secure responsible official information regarding those and other products of farm and field and orchard seems to us distinctly meritorious.—N. Y. Sun.

DO you know what it means, boys and girls
Who hail from the north and the south—
Do you know what it means,
This twining of greens
Round the silent cannon's mouth,
This strewing with flowers the grass grown grave,
This decking with garlands the statues brave,
This flaunting of flags
All in tatters and rags,
This marching and singing,
These bells a-ringing,
These faces grave and these faces gay,
This talk of the blue and this talk of the gray
In the north and the south Memorial day?

Not simply a show time, boys and girls,
Is this day of falling flowers,
Not a pageant play
Nor a holiday
Of flags and floral bowers.
It is something more than the day that starts
Warm memories a-throb in veteran hearts,
For across the years
To the hopes and fears,
To the days of battle,
Of roar and of rattle,
To the past that now seems so far away,
Do the sons of the blue and the sons of the gray
Gaze, hand clasping hand, Memorial day.

For the wreck and the wrong of it, boys and girls,
For the terror and loss as well,
Our hearts must hold
A regret untold
As we think of those who fell.
But their blood, on whichever side they fought,
Remade the nation and progress bought,
We forget the foe,
For we live and know
That the fighting and sighing,
The falling and dying,
Were but steps toward the future—the martyr's way,
Down which the sons of the blue and the gray
Look with love and pride Memorial day.

—Wide Awake.

THOUGHTS ON MEMORIAL DAY

By Horatio Mack.

Another year has rolled away into the shoreless ocean of eternity, and the nation with bowed head and with sad memories of the past fifty years greets this sacred and solemn anniversary, Memorial day. We come from happy homes and pleasant surroundings to lay upon the graves of the patriotic and loyal dead our tributes of love and affection. The earth is lavish with her beautiful flowers and all that she asks in return is that we lay them reverently on the graves of the brave "Boys in Blue" that she may again inhale their fragrance. "Oh! Cover these heroes of ours with beautiful flowers."

Why do we commemorate this day?

Let history answer. In the sixteenth century two vessels landed on the eastern shore of the new world. Two colonies representing two ideas of civil and religious liberty were founded in America. The colony at Jamestown, Va., was largely composed of an aristocratic element which had survived the revolution in England and were loyal to the King. The colony that landed at Plymouth Rock on the May Flower, held to a higher principle than an earthly king. They recognized the Supreme Ruler of the Universe and came to America to worship God at His own altar in the forests and solitudes amid a New England winter and under a wide and starry sky with none to molest. "Here they found freedom to worship God."

Time rolled on. Though the two colonies held different views on some questions, they were friendly and during the years preceding the Revolution they were loyal to the Crown. They assisted in driving the French from Canada. They were united in resisting King George and the hostile acts of Parliament. The voice of Patrick Henry joined the Adams, Warrens and Hancocks of Boston. "Liberty or Death" was the battle cry. They stood shoulder to shoulder with General Washington and had a common interest. But there was a third vessel which came to the New World, it brought from Africa a cargo of slaves, and the political and social Eden was changed. The Jamestown colony gave the first note of discord which was only hushed two hundred thirty years afterward when Abraham Lincoln issued the Proclamation of Emancipation and said to the South, "Let my people go." In the convention which framed the Constitution of the United States were heard the echoes of the coming irrepressible conflict. After many debates a compromise was made. But the North was on record as opposed to slavery and maintained that position to Appomattox when the South surrendered the sword covered with the blood prints of two hundred years of slave labor. Who was to lead the nation in the coming conflict which would stir the nation and almost rend it asunder? The Whig party which had carried at its mast head the honored names of Clay and Webster, had made so many compromises with the slave power and its last President, Millard Fillmore, had signed the Fugitive slave law which made it a crime with one years imprisonment in jail for a northern man, woman or child to harbor or feed a runaway slave. The party was out of commission. The Democratic party with few exceptions was for slavery. There were many Free Soil Democrats who were opposed to the further extension of slavery and that joined in the formation of a new party which was to be finally successful and furnish a leader to defend the Union at all hazards. That God rules the affairs of nations as well as of men is as true as any problem in mathematics and when the hour arrives the man for the hour appears. Moses, a babe in his little bullrush boat floating on the Nile and Abraham Lincoln, a small child five years old, only one hundred years ago this day, in his forest home in Kentucky, were men of God in embryo, who had a great work to do, and they both fulfilled their mission. What grander work was ever performed by human agents? Let history answer.

To be continued next week.

W. C. T. U. INSTITUTE

The Institute conducted by the Cayuga County W. C. T. U. in the Methodist Episcopal church on Wednesday, was largely attended in spite of the rain and was extremely interesting to those present. Members from the Auburn, Weedsport and Montezuma Unions with the local W. C. T. U. and ladies and gentlemen from the village, formed an enthusiastic audience for three sessions. Mrs. Dietrick gave in the evening session a telling address on "The New Army," showing the strength of recent re-enforcements in temperance work in the way of a changed public sentiment about the use of alcohol, a new knowledge furnished by scientific investigation, the wholly changed attitude of business towards the liquor user and the apprehensive tone of the liquor organs regarding the future prospects of their business.

A helpful feature of the afternoon session was the symposium on "Our Greatest Asset, the Children," participated in by Mrs. Roberts of Port Byron, Mrs. Soper of North Rose, and Mrs. Mills of Auburn, and closed by a fine presentation of the topic, "Eugenics and Heredity," by Dr. Burt of Phelps. This was followed by a charming demonstration of the local Loyal Temperance Legion.

Mrs. E. H. VanCamp gave delightful readings in the afternoon, and solos by Mrs. Anna Smith and Miss Mildred Aldrich and choruses rendered by the Symphony Society were greatly enjoyed. Throughout the day matters of particular interest to the work of the organization were discussed.

After being served the Governor made a few remarks on Progress in Education. He hoped to see the day when all the colleges of his state would have a Home Economics course. He ended by saying this had proved that "Women were the uncrowned queens of America."

Many guests prominent in state and educational circles were present.

The girls deserve much credit for their work, while Miss Marian Mills, instructor of Home Economics, is to be congratulated upon her success.

Miss Mills is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mills of this place and a graduate of the J al high school.
