THE PROCEEDINGS to determine the correct result of the recent election as to the choice for mayor are well under way and there is a fair prospect that an early decision will be rendered.

THE ANTI-IMPERIALIST league of Boston, which was organized to find out whether the wild scramble for distant lands peopled with alien races, which the country has entered upon so unexpectedly and so heedlessly, meets with the sober and deliberate judgment of the nation, has extended the sphere of its activity, and is now, through the agency of corresponding committees, forming a National Anti-Imperialist league, with headquarters in Washington.

FIVE MILES UP IN THE AIR. Two daring London aeronauts ascended five miles above the earth in a balloon and nearly froze to death. The temperature at that height was 61 degrees below zero. The men went in the interest of science, and while the actual benefit of their trip to humanity at large was considerable, it will not begin to equal the great good accomplished by the medical scientist who has been working on a remedy for stomach ailments.

A GALLANT RESCUE.

The rescue which the captain and crew of the Metropolitan line steamship Herman Winter made when they took from the wrecked and battered fishing schooner Emma M. Dyer 16 imperiled men during the terrible storm of Cape Cod on Monday was one of particular bravery. This was the scene when the steamer bore in sight. The Dyer, with anchor cast and dismasted, was slowly being driven toward the breakers on the rocky coast. The 16 Dyer men were huddled about the stump of the foremast with a flag in ribbons flying upon down, and the sea, dashing over the deck of the little craft constantly, threatening to wash into its angry depths the brave but benumbed sailors watching for the rescue they expected to come in time to save them.

found a hearty welcome. They were provided with dry clothing, warm food and berths, and were soon comfortably stowed away, thankful for the noble rescue made by Captain Nickerson and his gallant crew.

AS ANY STATE SOMETHING THOROUGHLY FRIGHTENED THREE COUNTRY RESIDENTS.

At Any State something thoroughly frightened Three Country Residents. The Southern part of the county has been the scene of many strange happenings and queer tales have been told of extraordinary events. The latest to come to the city is a story of a ghost, a real ghost, not an apparition appearing in a haunted house, to the noise of clanking chains, wild screams of pain, or weird groans and whispers. This ghost, so the believers say, is that of a man named Murphy who took his own life in this city some few years ago.

HIS DREAMS BRING MONEY. A story comes from Moravia that about one year ago Michael Delaney, of West Nile, dreamed that there was money hidden in a stall on the fair grounds. Delaney lost no time in making a search and was rewarded by finding a pocketbook containing $2 in silver. The Moravia Republican says that Delaney came to that office Thursday and related the following experience: "Last month the vision appeared again and told him he would later tell him where, many years ago, a man had buried 10 gold coins. Last Tuesday night the location was made known to Delaney. The spot was on the side hill opposite the lower entrance to Indian Mound cemetery. Thursday Delaney visited the place and unearthed a leather pouch, water soaked and decayed with age, containing 10 English coins, whose dates ranged from 1802 to 1852. Three of the coins were presented to the editor of 'The Republican.'"

THE THIRTEENTH.

Supervisors Agate Make Mr. Glasgow the Committee to Look After Free Bridges. The thirteenth day's session of the Board of Supervisors brought the week to a close with the transaction of routine business. Supervisor Penrod presented a petition from the assessors of the city of Auburn asking the removal of an assessment of $3,000 on personal property against R. H. Bloom, the assessors being satisfied that the assessment is erroneous. Referred to the Committee on Equalization.

Supervisor Eldredge from the Committee on Equalization, reported favorably on the following petitions: The assessors of Auburn in relation to the assessment against Lewis E. Lyon; the assessors of Springfield in relation to the assessment against Sarah E. Sherman; the assessors of Springfield in relation to the assessment against Zobeida Alleman; the assessors of Victory in relation to the assessments against Alonzo Parsons, John Merritt and Augustus Halsey. The committee reported adversely on the petition of the assessors of Victory in relation to an assessment against John Flynn. The report was laid over under the rule.

Supervisor Greenfield, from the Committee on County Roads, reported that his committee had carefully examined the report of Supervisor Glasgow as a committee having charge of the repairs to Free Bridge, had compared it with the vouchers and found that the work had cost, as Supervisor Glasgow stated, $20.97 more than the appropriation. The committee recommended that this amount be paid back to Supervisor Glasgow and also that an appropriation of $25 for repairs next year be made, providing Seneca county appropriates a similar amount. The report recommended the continuation of Supervisor Glasgow as a committee to superintend the repairs, he to report to next year's Board. Supervisor Greenfield moved a suspension of the rules and the adoption of the report, which was done on the first call of the eyes and days of the session.

Supervisors Gordon, from the Committee on Printing, reported that the proposal of the Auburn Printing company for printing 150 copies of the annual report was the lowest and recommended that the Board enter into a contract in accordance with the terms of the proposal. Laid over, under the rule. An error for which no one accepts responsibility made the supervisors the recipients of an invitation to attend a supper to be served by the ladies of Calvary Presbyterian church in the church parlors last Tuesday evening. The supper will be served next Tuesday evening, Dec. 8. Adjourned on motion of Supervisor Penrod.

They arrived in the city last night at 8:15 in charge of Deputy Sheriff C. E. Marvin and the two names were placed on the prison rolls. Pirro and Spinello were tried before Judge William M. Ross for the murder of a fellow countryman named Letizio Diritis on May 25, found guilty and 20 years was the sentence imposed on each. Diritis was killed by Pirro in a drunken row over a game of cards. Spinello was present at the time and from the testimony was a party to the crime, also later on aiding Pirro in keeping out of the way of the police.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Hurler.

A small audience greeted Mr. and Mrs. Russ Whytal in their new play last evening. Vagabondia is a romance of the eighteenth century and, if there is that in it which is reminiscent of something that has been seen before, Mr. Whytal's candor in announcing on the programme that he reconstructed it from an old play by Watts Phillips atones for it and tends to soften the ever present accusation of plagiarism. Vagabondia is not a great play. Neither is it an absolutely bad play. Its first two acts impose too much upon the presenting company. No matter how clever the people may be, they are apt to become tiresome to the audience and nervous themselves if they have to struggle through two acts with little or nothing but pretty scenery beyond their make-up to interest the auditors. The first two acts of Vagabondia need a vigorous overhauling. The third and fourth acts are as brilliant as the preceding ones are the reverse. So good was the climax of the third that Mr. and Mrs. Whytal were accorded a curtain call and vigorous applause when the final curtain fell told that the dramatic worth of the fourth found entire appreciation. Mr. and Mrs. Whytal are as strong in romantic work as they were in the pleasantly remembered, Fair Virginia. Mr. Whytal's acting, despite the fact that his attention is claimed by the various details incidental to a new production, was clear and forceful. His talented wife shone throughout but particularly the last act did the invest with a pulpitude that the work of the dramatist could but contemplate. The supporting company was, in the main, of the required excellence. William McCready's Smelter, a bibulous tinker, easily takes the palm of special mention, while Frank Sylvester's Sir John Wayward was also good his duel with Mr. Whytal in the last act being especially noteworthy. Vagabondia will doubtless achieve considerable success when the process of pruning and alteration has been completed.
