AT ALBANY.

The Senate in Session All Night—A Compromise Effected.

ALBANY, March 11.—Senate—It was almost half past 3 o'clock this morning, when the physical and numerical remnant of thirty-two senators and fifteen correspondents issued from the Senate chamber. At 2:30 the first call of the Senate was suspended, and an attempt made to proceed with the business. The same failure was made and Mr. Fassett again moved a call of the Senate and the sergeant at arms was sent after Senators Collins, Sheard and Jacobs, all of whom had skipped out under various pretences. Roll calls at that time were answered from various corners of the Senate chamber, the members being wrapped up in their great coats and asleep on the lounges. At 3 o'clock the call again suspended and at a quarter past three it was agreed to compromise. The Republicans through Mr. Fassett, offered an amendment to rule 3 as follows: He (the Lieutenant Governor) shall have the right when in the city of Albany to designate in writing a member to perform his duties, but not for any longer time than 24 hours from the time of making such designation, which may be revoked at any time by the Senate." The amendment was immediately made and the Senate adjourned until 2 p. m.

The senate at the time of adjournment had been in session thirteen consecutive hours and had not done any business for one week. The compromise amounts to nothing, as both parties have the same

He will be at the New National Hotel, Auburn, Monday and Tuesday, April 6th and 7th, 1891 Guarantees to cure every case of Piles and no pay taken until a cure is made. M,W,F

The Art of Conversation.

Two winters ago a cultivated and enterprising woman looked about for an opportunity of exercising her pretty talents with profitable results. With almost the inspiration of genius she concluded to hold classes in conversation. On first thought her friends were greatly amused, and yet, when her explanation was made, they began to wonder how society had moved along satisfactorily without the aid of lessons in conversation. The woman's idea was clever, indeed.

"People," she said, "are taught to read, write, walk, eat, dance, play and sing, but rarely are they taught to use their tongues in everyday speech with ability and discretion." She therefore proposed not only to lecture, but also to give practical lessons to the shyly or stubbornly silent woman, the woman awkward in conversation, the woman ambitious of gaining acquaintance with her fellow beings, yet ignorant of the graceful turns of speech; the woman afflicted with a harsh voice, unpleasant accent and untuneful and ill timed laughter.

Young women she hoped to gain as her pupils—girls about to enter society, or those suffering from personal defects of manner which, if corrected in youth, would not in after years become objectionable and irremediable characteristics. Carefully the simple curriculum for the study of this pretty accomplishment of conversation was prepared. Some friends, partly from curiosity and partly from careless generosity, joining the class, shortly converted it into a gossip tea, and the little conservatory of conversation lost its object and its standing and very quietly died of sheer lack of life.—Illustrated American.

One Reporter's "Copy."

The writer is tempted to tell a story at the expense of a lovely and gifted lady who began a few years ago a career as a society reporter. Every week her copy went to the editor beautifully written and faultless, considered as copy from the printer's point of view. But any little suggestion she wanted to make she ran it along with the article in the following fashion:

"Mr. and Mrs. Brown-Smyth gave on Monday an elegant blue dinner of fourteen covers. [For goodness' sake, spell her name Smy—last week it went in Smi, and she was as mad as hops about it.] Mrs. Indigo Blueblood has sent out cards for a ball, at which she will introduce into society her lovely daughter. [This is all right. This Mrs. Blueblood has some sense, and doesn't in the least mind seeing her name in print. It's the other Mrs. Blueblood we had the fuss with.] Mrs. Uptown gives a pink tea as soon as Lent is over. [Don't stick her down at the tail end of the column, whatever you do. I want to please her anyhow, because last week she just went in as one of the 'many others.']"

If it had not been for the discriminating editorial blue pencil that fashion and society column would have been very delicious reading on Sunday morning—since a printer follows copy, and a [illegible] on the paragraph's brim a [illegible] is to him, and it is

PALMER CHOSEN.

THE DEADLOCK IN THE ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE BROKEN AT LAST ON THE 154TH BATLOT.

Cockrell and Moore, the Alliance Men, Did the Business.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 11.—Gen. John M. Palmer was to-day elected United States Senator on the 154th ballot, Messrs. Moore and Cockrell, the Alliance members, voting with the Democrats. The vote stood: Palmer 103, Lindley 101, Streeter 1.

The scenes when the joint assembly was called to order to-day, were exciting in the extreme. The only Republican senator who answered to his name was M. Evans. The twenty-four Democrats responded, showing twenty-five senators out of the fifty-one present. When the house roll was called, Cockrell answered to his name and the Democrats broke into cheers. When Dr. Moore responded to his name the cheering was deafening from Democratic members and spectators alike. When Tauheneck's name was reached he refused to answer, and it was the turn of the Republicans to cheer. Seventy-nine members of the house answered to their names. Then the rolls were ordered called and the one hundred and fifty-fourth ballot for United States Senator was taken. The Republicans refrained from voting but when Palmer's election was assurred they plunged solidly for Lindley.

When the name of Cockrell was reached, he rose and asked leave to explain his vote. The Democrats shouted, "leave," "leave," and the Republicans yelled, "object," "object," "No." "no," the noise being so great that the pounding of the speaker's gavel could not be heard. At length Cockrell shouted "Palmer," and the Democrats shouted and yelled and pounded their desks in wild delight. When order had been restored the vote was proceeded uninterruptedly until the name of Dr. Moore was reached. He rose and in a clear voice responded "John M. Palmer." It was then that pandemonium was let loose. The scene was indescribable. Palmer's election had been secured and the Democrats could not contain themselves. The remainder of the roll was called with difficulty. However, the shouts of "Palmer" could be heard above the din, and when Speaker Crafts voted, the shouts were renewed. Then a fist fight broke out on the Republican side. Representative Berry had a quarrel with one of the members of the Steering committee on that side, and in attempting to quiet him, he hit out from the shoulder several times to the discomfort of those near him. A lady near him brought him to his sober thoughts by a little coaxing, and order was again restored. The speaker finally announced the ballot and the final vote of the contest, and formally declared Gen. Palmer elected. Then began the pandemonium. Horns and drums had been provided for the purpose. Baskets and papers were thrown into the air, and the galleries responded by a waving sea of handkerchiefs. The house became a regular bear garden, and the Democrats, utterly unable to contain themselves, gave vent to their feeling in the most ludicrous fashion. A committee was appointed to wait on Senator-elect Palmer to inform him of his election and to request his appearance before the joint assembly. They did so and produced Gen. Palmer in person. He was greeted with an ovation that would be difficult to describe. Gen. Palmer spoke in his usual off hand unpretentious way, without any effort at a set speech. On motion of Senator Noonan the joint assembly adjourned sine die, amid the blowing of horns and the clapping of hands, and then the cheering began in earnest. Messrs. Moore and Cockrell were subjects of an ovation at the conclusion of the proceedings.

A Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther H. Bryan of 45 Cayuga street, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage at their pleasant home last evening. A large number of their friends joined them in the celebration and the occasion was a thoroughly enjoyable one for all. Congratulations and testimonials were showered on the happy couple from all sides, from friends present and those who were unable to be with them, accompanied with substantial tokens of remembrances of the day. The evening passed off pleasantly. Rev. F. D. Penney, pastor of the Second Baptist church of which Mr. and Mrs. Bryan are members, was present and added to the pleasure of the occasion by a suitable address, wishing the happy couple many returns of the day. Miss Mary E. Tallmadge organist of the Second Baptist church, played several selections and Charles G. Adams sang several selections. A bountiful supper was served during the evening.

Brother and Sister Die on the Same Day.

Mrs. Eva, relict of the late Aaron H. Dixon of Maple street, died at her late home yesterday morning shortly after seven o'clock. A few hours later her brother, DeForrest Sperry, died at his home in Franklin street. Mrs. Dixon was 64 years of age and Mr. Sperry 80.

SENECA FALLS, March 11.—Among the sums recommended by the Board of Trustees for the tax payers to vote upon at the next annual tax meeting to be held Tuesday, March 16, is the refunding of $86, the tax on Silsby hose house and lot. There are many taxpayers who are opposed to this recommendation and believe that the property of a volunteer fire company should be taxed.

MURDER WILL OUT.

A Most Startling Confession of a Crime Unequalled in the Annals of History.

TACOMA, Wash., March 11.—A prominent physician of this city has just made a horrible and startling revelation in which he alleges that he was called two months ago to the death bed of a poor Swede, named Lars Pedersen. He told the physician he wished his dying confession written, and it is as follows: Pedersen worked in Armour's packing house in Chicago until 1887, then went to Sioux City to Silverhorn's packing house, where he worked until the spring of 1889, when he killed a man named Larson Harstrut, who worked on the night shift with him cleaning the floors in the killing rooms. He stabbed him many times, and his blood flowed down the gutter to the fertilizer, mixing with the blood of the swine killed that day. He then put him in the chute and ran his body in among 10,000 carcasses killed that day. Next morning he took the body to the chopping blocks cut it in pieces, covered it with salt and ran them to the freezing rooms among piles of pork left there for months. He then burned the clothes in the furnance. Pederson lived in Sioux City for two months after the murder and then came here. The physician can give no good reason why he did not make the alleged confession public before.

A Tame Prize Fight.

FULTONVILLE, N. Y., March 11.—A large audience of the sports of the Mohawk Valley and surrounding country gathered in Donaldson hall last night, to witness the contest under Marquis of Queensbury rules between Jimmy Dime of Amsterdam, and Dennis Shaughnessy of Troy. The men appeared promptly at midnight. A wrangle over the choice of referee occupied the midnight hour and it was nearly 3 a. m., when "Zip" Myers, the celebrated 105 pound pugilist, was chosen and stepped into the ring. The men shook hands and began their work. Nineteen tame rounds were fought, Dime showing the heaviest hitting powers, while all present allowed that Shaughnessy displayed superior science. At the close of the nineteenth round the victory was awarded to Dime. The decision is not entirely satisfactory, as neither man showed any punishment.
